

The Crisis of the Modern World

René Guénon

A penetrating critique of modern civilization from one of the 20th century's most uncompromising metaphysical thinkers, The Crisis of the Modern World diagnoses the spiritual disorientation at the heart of the West.

Written in 1927, The Crisis of the Modern World is René Guénon's foundational analysis of the collapse of traditional principles in favor of materialism, individualism, and unchecked technological progress. Against the myth of perpetual advancement, Guénon argues that modernity represents not progress but decline—a descent from sacred order into quantitative chaos.

Drawing upon perennial wisdom traditions, Guénon contrasts the metaphysical foundations of traditional civilizations with the fragmented outlook of the contemporary West. He examines the rise of secularism, the reduction of knowledge to empirical science, and the inversion of hierarchy that places the material above the spiritual.

For readers of traditionalist thought, metaphysics, cultural criticism, and radical critiques of modernity, this work remains indispensable.
